

Enrique Bonsón is Professor of Accounting at the University of Huelva, Spain. He received his BBA and PhD from the University of Sevilla, Spain. His teaching experience encompasses a variety of accounting courses, including financial, management, accounting information systems and financial analysis. At the postgraduate level he has taught seminars on Artificial Intelligence and Expert Systems in Accounting, Digital Accounting, Research Methodologies in Accounting and XBRL. He has a range of interrelated research interests in Accounting Information Systems, Corporate Reporting and the Internet, Digital Assurance and Continuous Audit.

His research publications appear in Financial Markets, Institutions and Instruments, the International Journal of Accounting Information Systems, the International Journal of Digital Accounting Research, the International Journal of Networking and Virtual Organisations, Journal of Financial Regulation and Compliance, the New Review of Applied Expert Systems and Emerging Technologies, the Online Information Review, ONLINE: The Magazine for Information Professionals, Revista de Contabilidad, Revista Española de Financiación y Contabilidad, Revista Internacional Legis de Contabilidad y Auditoría and many other business and professional periodicals. He is co-editor of the International Journal of Digital Accounting Research, and has served on editorial boards of several respected journals, including Global Perspectives on Accounting Education, International Journal of Accounting, International Journal of Managerial and Financial Accounting, Journal of Emerging Technologies in Accounting, and New Review of Applied Expert Systems and Emerging Technologies.

Professor Bonsón is a member of the Spanish Association of Accounting Academics and the Spanish Accounting Association where he is the Chairman of the Commission for New Technologies in Accounting. Currently he is the Vicepresident of XBRL Spain. Since 1995 he has been the organizer of a number of international conferences on Artificial Intelligence and Emerging Technologies in Accounting at the University of Huelva. In 2004 he started to host the Digital Accounting Research Conference.

He has been a visiting researcher/professor at several universities including Sacred Heart University, Milan, Italy, Queen's University, Belfast, Northern Ireland, Rutgers University, New Jersey, Universidad Nacional del Litoral, Argentina, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia, Hogeschool of Gent, Belgium, Pas de Calais International Business School (ESCIP), France, Hochschule Liechtenstein and Laurea University of Applied Sciences, Finland..

Dr. Bonsón co-authored several books including Sistemas Expertos en Contabilidad y Administración de Empresas, World Wide Web y el Ciberespacio Económico Financiero, Internet Empresarial, Código de Buenas prácticas para la Distribución de Información Financiera en Internet, XBRL un Estándar para el Intercambio Electrónico de Información Económica y Financiera, Certificación y Auditoría de la Información Digital e Inteligencia Artificial en Contabilidad.

He received the Award for Notable Contributions to Artificial Intelligence/Expert Systems Teaching in Accounting (AI/ET Section of the AAA) in 1997, the Spanish Accounting Association Best Paper Award in 2001 and the Accounting Research Award "Carlos Cubillo Valverde" in 2001. His research activity 1996-2001 received a positive evaluation from the Spanish Agency for Evaluation of Research in 2002.