"í,"
excerpt from a visual-poetry series by Sachiko Murakami and a rawlings
Table of contents

The Life of Others: Narratives of Vulnerability

Articles

The Life of Others: Narratives of Vulnerability. Introduction
Eva Darias-Beautell ................................................................. 3

Now I Am Become Death': Japanese and Canadian Industrial Contamination in Michiko Ishimure’s Paradise in the Sea of Sorrow: Our Minamata Disease and Thomas King’s The Back of the Turtle
Shoshannah Ganz ................................................................. 9

The Unsettling Portrayal of Migrant Existence in Rawi Hage’s Urban Fiction
Hilde Staels ................................................................. 15

Chinatown Children during World War Two in The Jade Peony
Zhen Liu ................................................................. 25

Controlled Bodies, Mental Wounds: Vulnerability in Mariko and Jillian Tamaki’s Skim
Coral Anaid Díaz Cano ................................................................. 37

The best tradition of womanhood': Negotiating and Reading Identities in Emma Donoghue’s Landing
Kaarina Mikalson ................................................................. 51

Apocalypses Now: Two Modes of Vulnerability in Last Night and The Mist
Fabián Orán Liarena ................................................................. 61

Creative Writing

FIRE IF YOU NEED / A CURATORIAL STATEMENT
Angela Rawlings ................................................................. 72

Excerpt from their in-progress collaborative manuscript Nature Building
Elee Kraljii Gardiner and Andrew McEwan ................................................................. 76

Two poems
Jónína Kirton ................................................................. 80

Excerpt from in-progress manuscript Render
Sachiko Murakami ................................................................. 84

Excerpt from in-progress manuscript Sex World (is Definitely for Adults!)
Jamie Popowich ................................................................. 90

Excerpts from work in progress
Gerry Shikatani ................................................................. 94

Excerpt from in-progress manuscript Lifeforce Klepto
Angela Szczepaniak ................................................................. 98